About this book

Every chapter here begins with real records. The people, places and years come from public WikiTree profiles, starting from Robinson-27225. Where records show someone born in one place and later living in another, this book follows that move.

The dishes in the chapters are traditional foods from those places and eras, chosen from a curated collection. They are not recorded family recipes. They are the kind of meals families like these might have cooked, and a way to taste the world they left and the one they came to. The family kitchen is different: those recipes were written down by relatives, and appear here exactly as they were shared, each introduced by a page about the person who cooked it.

Dates of moves are approximate windows estimated from birth, death and children's birthplaces.

The text of 3 of 3 chapters was drafted in whole or in part by an open-weight model (gemma3:4b) and checked against those records before printing; the rest was assembled directly from the records. Every fact about the people comes straight from the records, not from the model, which wrote only about the food.

Where a WikiTree profile has a primary photo, it appears beside that person, credited to the profile it came from. Those photos belong to the people who uploaded them.

Passages under How they wrote it are quoted word for word from cookbooks of the period that are in the public domain in the United States. Spelling and measures are original, and sometimes surprising.

> Add your own: a blank page after each chapter is a good place for the recipes your family really does pass down.

CHAPTER 1

The Midwest to the American West

sometime between 1917 and 2003 · from Belle Plaine, Benton, the Midwest

Carl William Robinson, father: parents and grandparents

IN THE KITCHEN, IN THOSE YEARS

Wartime rationing in the United States limited sugar, meat, butter and canned goods, and families planted victory gardens.

Supermarkets, frozen foods and the first TV dinners, sold from 1953, changed how fast an ordinary weeknight meal could be made.

Microwave ovens moved from restaurants into homes, and by the 1990s most American households had one, which changed how leftovers and quick meals were made.

 Firman Joseph Robinson 1901–1991 · Robinson-27274 grandfather

 Carl William Robinson 1933–2003 · Robinson-27265 father

Records on WikiTree place Leona Catherine Budd (grandmother, born 1904), Firman Joseph Robinson (grandfather, born 1901) and Carl William Robinson (father, born 1933) in Belle Plaine, Benton at the start of this story, and later in Aberdeen, Grays Harbor. The move happened sometime between 1917 and 2003; the records don't say exactly when.

Families from the Midwest often prepared simple meals. In the early years, around 1917, ingredients like meat, sugar, and butter were limited due to wartime rationing. Kitchens of the time might have focused on dishes like chicken and noodles, served with homemade egg noodles and mashed potatoes. After 1953, supermarkets and new technologies changed how meals were made. Cornmeal mush, chilled in a loaf pan, was a common breakfast. By the 1990s, microwave ovens were prevalent, altering how leftovers and quick meals were prepared. The American West saw the widespread production of apples, leading to pies.

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF THE MIDWEST

Chicken and Noodles

Chicken and noodles were a hearty meal, utilizing readily available ingredients and served in the Midwest. The dish featured rich chicken broth and homemade egg noodles, a staple across Indiana and Ohio.

Serves 6 Time 2 hr Course Main

INGREDIENTS

- 1 whole chicken (about 1.5 kg)
- 2.5 litres water, 1 onion, 2 celery stalks, salt and pepper
- Noodles: 250 g flour, 2 eggs, ½ tsp salt, about 60 ml water
- Mashed potatoes to serve

METHOD

1. Simmer the chicken with the onion, celery and seasoning for 1 hour. Lift out, pick the meat and strain the broth.
2. Mix the flour, eggs, salt and just enough water to make a stiff dough. Roll very thin, rest 20 minutes, and cut into wide ribbons.
3. Bring the broth to a boil, drop in the noodles and simmer 10–12 minutes. Return the chicken.
4. Ladle over mashed potatoes.

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF THE MIDWEST

Cornmeal Mush (Fried)

Cooked cornmeal, chilled in a loaf pan, sliced and fried, a frontier breakfast.

Serves 4–6 Time 30 min + chilling Course Breakfast

INGREDIENTS

- 150 g cornmeal
- 750 ml water
- 1 tsp salt
- Butter or lard for frying
- Maple syrup

METHOD

1. Whisk the cornmeal into the cold salted water, bring to a boil, and cook 15 minutes, stirring.
2. Pour into a greased loaf pan and chill until firm.
3. Slice and fry in butter until crisp on both sides. Serve with syrup.

HOW THEY WROTE IT, IN 1920

> Place in a saucepan
> Two cups of boiling water,
> One teaspoon of salt,
> Two-thirds cup of cornmeal.
> Stir to prevent lumping and then cook slowly for one-half hour. Now rinse a bread pan with cold water and turn in the mush. Let mould for twenty-four hours, then cut in one-half inch slices. Dip in flour and fry brown in hot fat.

AN AMERICAN CLASSIC

Double-Crust Apple Pie

Apples were widely grown in the American colonies, and pie was a practical way to keep them.

Serves 8 Time 1 hr 30 Course Dessert

INGREDIENTS

- Pastry for a double-crust 23 cm pie
- 1 kg tart apples, peeled and sliced
- 100 g sugar
- 2 tbsp flour
- 1 tsp cinnamon
- 1 tbsp butter
- 1 egg, beaten

METHOD

1. Toss the apples with sugar, flour and cinnamon.
2. Fill the lined pie plate, dot with butter, top with the second crust, crimp, vent, and brush with egg.
3. Bake at 200°C / 400°F for 20 minutes, then 180°C / 350°F for 35 minutes, until bubbling.

HOW THEY WROTE IT, IN 1916

> Make a rich crust of half a pound of butter, a pound of flour, and a pinch of salt. Work with the fingers until it is like meal, and add ice-water to mix. Roll out, pat into shape, and line a pie-tin with the crust. Peel, core, and cut up good cooking apples, fill the pie, dot with butter, sprinkle with sugar and spice, cover with the other crust and bake. Sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving.

	Carl Budd 1864–1934 · Budd-1261	great-grandfather

Records on WikiTree place Mary Pickering (4x great-grandmother, born 1804), Mary M Millard (3x great-grandmother, born 1811), Amanda Amelia Phelps (3x great-grandmother, born 1814) and 5 other relatives in Pennsylvania, United States at the start of this story, and later in Wisconsin, United States. The move happened sometime between 1820 and 1916; the records don't say exactly when.

Families from the Mid-Atlantic, particularly in Pennsylvania, often prepared simple dishes for sustenance during travel to the Midwest. Buckwheat pancakes, made with locally grown buckwheat, were a winter staple. Apple dumplings, utilizing apples from the region, were frequently baked in syrup. Kitchens of the time might have included a pot pie, a stew with square noodles, reflecting the Pennsylvania Dutch traditions. Refrigerated railroad cars, beginning in the mid-19th century, allowed for the shipment of fresh beef, influencing the availability of meat products. Recipes, like those popularized by Fannie Farmer, increasingly relied on level measurements for repeatability.

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF THE MID-ATLANTIC

Buckwheat Pancakes

Buckwheat pancakes were a winter staple, utilising the grain grown in Pennsylvania and New York. These were a common dish amongst families travelling westward from the Mid-Atlantic.

Serves 4 Time 25 min Course Breakfast

INGREDIENTS

- 120 g buckwheat flour
- 60 g plain flour
- 1 tsp baking powder
- ½ tsp salt
- 1 egg
- 300 ml buttermilk
- 2 tbsp melted butter
- Butter for the pan; maple syrup

METHOD

1. Whisk the flours, baking powder and salt. In another bowl beat the egg, buttermilk and melted butter.
2. Stir the wet into the dry until just combined.
3. Cook ladlefuls on a buttered griddle, 2 minutes a side. Serve with maple syrup.

HOW THEY WROTE IT, IN 1840

> Take a quart of buckwheat meal, mix with it a tea-spoonful of salt, and add a handful of Indian meal. Pour a large table-spoonful of the best brewer's yeast into the centre of the meal. Then mix it gradually with cold water till it becomes a batter. Cover it, put it in a warm place and set it to rise; it will take about three hours. When it is quite light, and covered with bubbles, it is fit to bake. Put your griddle over the fire, and let it get quite hot before you begin. Grease it well with a piece of butter tied in a rag. Then dip out a large ladle full of the batter and bake it on the griddle; turning it with a broad wooden paddle. Let the cakes be of large size, and even at the edges. Ragged edges to batter cakes look very badly. Butter them as you take them off the griddle. Put several on a plate, and cut them across in six pieces.
> Grease the griddle anew, between baking each cake.
> If your batter has been mixed over night and is found to be sour in the morning, melt in warm water a piece of pearl-ash the size of a grain of corn, or a little larger; stir it into the batter; let it set half an hour, and then bake it. The pearl-ash will remove the sour taste, and increase the lightness of the cakes.

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF THE MID-ATLANTIC

Baked Apple Dumplings

Baked apple dumplings, using apples from the Mid-Atlantic, were a popular treat, often served with syrup.

Serves 6 Time 1 hr 15 Course Dessert

INGREDIENTS

- 6 small tart apples, peeled and cored
- Pastry for a double-crust pie, rolled into six squares
- 6 tbsp brown sugar and 1 tsp cinnamon, mixed
- 30 g butter
- Syrup: 200 g sugar, 250 ml water, 1 tbsp butter, ½ tsp cinnamon

METHOD

1. Heat the oven to 190°C / 375°F. Stand each apple on a pastry square, fill the core with the sugar mixture and a dot of butter.
2. Bring the corners up around the apple, pinch to seal, and set in a baking dish.
3. Simmer the syrup ingredients for 3 minutes and pour around (not over) the dumplings.
4. Bake 45 minutes, basting once, until golden and the apples are tender.

HOW THEY WROTE IT, IN 1840

> Take large fine juicy apples. Pare them, and extract the cores without dividing the apple. Fill each hole with brown sugar, and some chips of lemon peel. Also squeeze in some lemon juice. Or you may fill the cavities with raspberry jam, or with any sort of marmalade. Have ready a paste, made in the proportion of a pound of suet, chopped as fine as possible, to two pounds and a half of sifted flour, well mixed, and wetted with as little water as possible. Roll out the paste to a moderate thickness, and cut it into circular pieces, allowing two pieces to each dumpling. Lay your apple on one piece, and put another piece on the top, closing the paste round the sides with your fingers, so as to cover the apple entirely. This is a better way than gathering up the paste at one end, as the dumpling is less liable to burst. Boil each dumpling in a small coarse cloth, which has first been dipped in hot water. There should always be a set of cloths kept for the purpose. Tie them tightly, leaving a small space for the dumpling to swell. Plaster a little flour on the inside of each tying place to prevent the water from getting in. Have ready a pot of boiling water. Put in the dumplings and boil them from three quarters to an hour. Send them to table hot in a covered dish. Do not take them up till a moment before they are wanted.
> Eat them with cream and sugar, or with butter and sugar. …

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF THE MID-ATLANTIC

Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken Pot Pie

The Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken Pot Pie was a stew featuring square noodles, a distinctly regional preparation.

Serves 6 Time 1 hr 45 Course Main

INGREDIENTS

- 1 whole chicken (about 1.5 kg)
- 2 potatoes, cubed
- 1 onion and 2 celery stalks, chopped
- Parsley, salt and pepper
- Dough: 250 g flour, 1 egg, 60 ml water, ½ tsp salt

METHOD

1. Simmer the chicken with the onion and celery in water to cover for 1 hour. Lift out, pick the meat, and keep the broth.
2. Mix the dough, roll very thin and cut into 4 cm squares.
3. Bring the broth to a boil with the potatoes. Drop in the squares, one by one, and simmer 15 minutes.
4. Return the chicken, add parsley, season and serve.

CHAPTER 3

Germany to the Mid-Atlantic

sometime between 1853 and 1864 · from Frischborn, Lauterbach, Germany

Katherina Greb, 2x great-grandmother: parents and grandparents

IN THE KITCHEN, IN THOSE YEARS

German immigrants brought lager brewing, sausage-making and bakeries to American cities, especially across the Midwest.

Chemical leavening, first baking soda and then baking powder, spread through home kitchens and made quick breads and cakes possible without yeast.

Refrigerated railroad cars let Chicago meatpackers ship fresh beef east, changing what ordinary families could buy.

Records on WikiTree place Katherina Greb (2x great-grandmother, born 1837) in Frischborn, Lauterbach at the start of this story, and later in Forestville, Chautauqua. The move happened sometime between 1853 and 1864; the records don't say exactly when.

Families from Germany, arriving between 1853 and 1864, often brought new cooking methods to the Mid-Atlantic. Kitchens of the time might feature lager brewing and sausage-making alongside the introduction of bakeries. Chemical leavening, through baking soda and powder, altered the preparation of breads and cakes. Railroads facilitated the transport of fresh beef, changing the kinds of ingredients available to families. Rouladen, braised beef rolls, were a common Sunday dish. Spätzle, hand-shaped egg dumplings, were also popular. Pennsylvania German scrapple, made from pork and cornmeal, offered a way to utilize all parts of the hog.

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF GERMANY

Rouladen

Rouladen were a German Sunday dish, consisting of thin slices of beef rolled around bacon, onion and pickle, and braised in gravy.

Serves 4 Time 2 hr Course Main

INGREDIENTS

- 8 thin slices beef round (about 800 g)
- 2 tbsp mustard
- 4 slices bacon, halved
- 1 onion, sliced
- 2 pickles, cut in strips
- 2 tbsp oil
- 500 ml beef stock
- Salt and pepper

METHOD

1. Spread each slice with mustard, season, and lay on a half-slice of bacon, some onion and a strip of pickle. Roll up and tie or pin.
2. Brown the rolls in oil in a heavy pot. Add the stock, cover and simmer gently 1½ hours until tender.
3. Lift out the rolls and reduce the gravy; thicken with a little flour paste if you like. Serve with potatoes or red cabbage.

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF GERMANY

Spätzle

Spätzle are little hand-shaped egg dumplings originating from Swabia and the south. They were a versatile addition to many German meals.

Serves 4 Time 30 min Course Side

INGREDIENTS

- 300 g plain flour
- 3 eggs
- 120 ml water or milk
- 1 tsp salt
- Pinch of nutmeg
- 2 tbsp butter

METHOD

1. Beat the flour, eggs, liquid, salt and nutmeg to a thick, elastic batter. Rest 10 minutes.
2. Press or scrape the batter in small pieces into simmering salted water. They are done when they float.
3. Lift out, drain, and toss in hot butter.

A TRADITIONAL DISH OF THE MID-ATLANTIC

Scrapple

Scrapple is a Pennsylvania German dish made from pork and broth thickened with cornmeal. It was prepared at butchering time, utilizing every part of the hog, and served fried.

Serves 8 Time 2 hr + chilling Course Breakfast

INGREDIENTS

- 450 g pork shoulder or scraps
- 1 litre water
- 150 g cornmeal
- 40 g buckwheat flour (optional)
- 1½ tsp salt
- 1 tsp ground sage
- ½ tsp black pepper
- ¼ tsp thyme
- Butter or lard for frying

METHOD

1. Simmer the pork in the water for 1½ hours until very tender. Lift out and shred finely; keep the broth.
2. Return 750 ml of broth to the pot. Whisk in the cornmeal, buckwheat flour and seasonings and cook, stirring, for 30 minutes until very thick.
3. Stir in the pork, pour into a greased loaf pan and chill overnight until firm.
4. Slice 1 cm thick and fry in butter until crisp and brown on both sides.

Born in 1904 in Belle Plaine, Benton, to Carl Budd and Lovey Jane Hoover. Died in 1966 in Aberdeen, Grays Harbor, aged 62.

Their move from the Midwest to the American West is in Chapter 1.

IN THEIR TIME

Electric refrigerators began entering American homes in the 1920s and became common by the 1940s, and the weekly shop slowly replaced daily marketing.

In the Great Depression, thrift ruled the kitchen: beans, cornmeal and potatoes stretched meals, and cooks invented "mock" versions of dishes they could no longer afford.

Wartime rationing in the United States limited sugar, meat, butter and canned goods, and families planted victory gardens.

IN THEIR TIME

Wartime rationing in the United States limited sugar, meat, butter and canned goods, and families planted victory gardens.

Supermarkets, frozen foods and the first TV dinners, sold from 1953, changed how fast an ordinary weeknight meal could be made.

Microwave ovens moved from restaurants into homes, and by the 1990s most American households had one, which changed how leftovers and quick meals were made.

Born in the 1930s, to Francis Lynden Peasley and Alice Hester Harrison.

IN THEIR TIME

Supermarkets, frozen foods and the first TV dinners, sold from 1953, changed how fast an ordinary weeknight meal could be made.

Microwave ovens moved from restaurants into homes, and by the 1990s most American households had one, which changed how leftovers and quick meals were made.

Recipes began to travel online: from the late 1990s many cooks looked them up and shared them on the web instead of copying them by hand from cards and cookbooks.
